

MANAGERIAL ROLES

3 types of managerial roles

MANAGERIAL ROLES

Dr. Henry Mintzberg, an eminent management researcher, observed the daily activities of five executives from five different organisations - A School, A Consulting Firm, A Technology Firm, A Consumer Goods Manufacturer, and A Hospital. He analyzed all those activities in detail and came up with 10 different roles played by a manager in a business organization.

These roles can be classified into 3 broad categories:

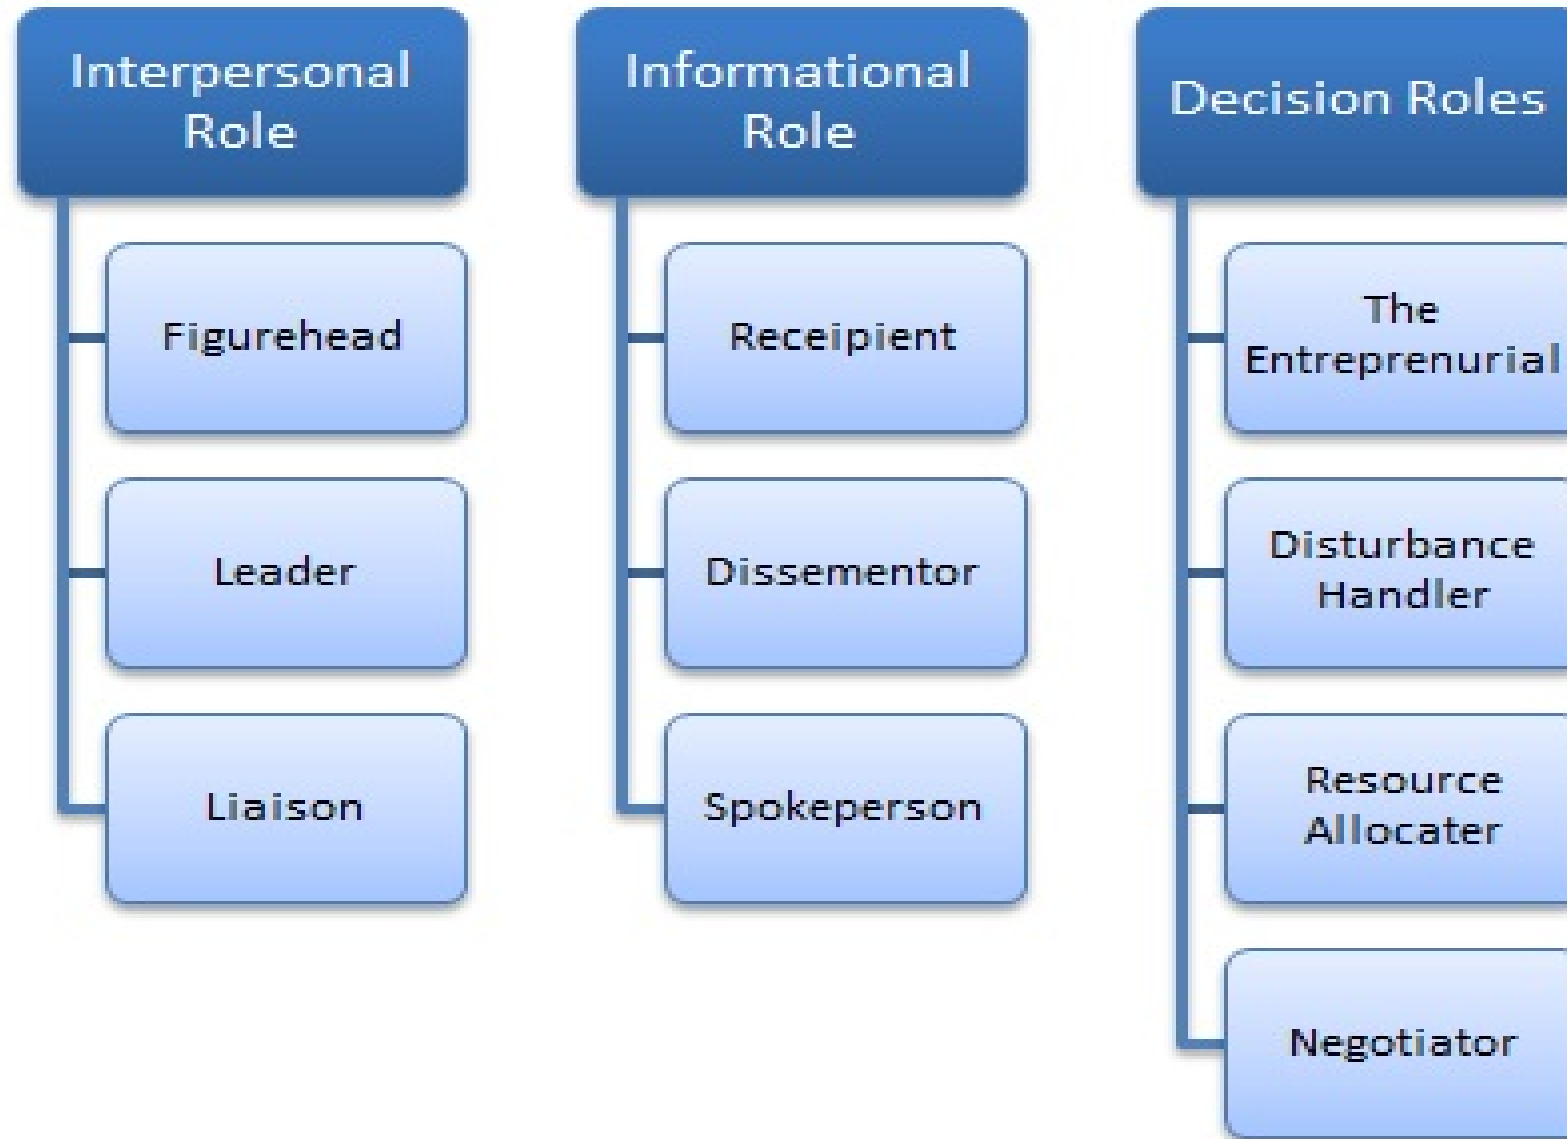

1) Interpersonal Roles

2) Informational Roles

3) Decisional Roles

MANAGERIAL ROLES

Interpersonal Roles

- 1. Figurehead: Members of the organization look up to a manager as a source of inspiration. He/She is expected to have social, ceremonial and legal responsibilities. Managers perform the duties that are symbolic in nature. The manager is seen as a symbol of status and authority.
- 2. Leader: A manager exhibits leadership role in the organization involving duties such as structuring and motivating subordinates, overseeing their progress, managing their responsibilities, promoting and encouraging their development, and balancing effectiveness.
- 3. Liaison: Managers must communicate with internal and external parties. A manager has information and communication obligations. A manager is expected to maintain a network of contacts on behalf of the organization to obtain key information and gather access to knowledge base.

Informational Roles

1. Monitor: This role encompasses duties such as assessing internal operations, a department's success and the problems and opportunities which may arise. The monitor seeks internal and external information about issues that can affect the organization and ensures that such information is stored and maintained properly.

2. Disseminator: The disseminator transmits information internally that is obtained from either internal or external sources. A manager highlights factual or value-based external views into the organization and to subordinates. This requires both filtering and delegation skills.

3. Spokesperson: This role includes representing the organization and providing information about the organization in the capacity of Public Relations (PR) to outsiders. This role ensures that the key stakeholders are updated about the operations of the organization.

Decisional Roles

- 1. Entrepreneur: This role involves all aspects associated with acting as an initiator, designer, and also an encourager of innovation and change.
- 2. Disturbance Handler: The disturbance handler takes corrective action when the organization faces important, unexpected difficulties. A generalist role that takes charge when an organization is unexpectedly upset or transformed and requires calming and support.
- 3. Resource Allocator: This role describes the responsibility of optimum allocation of financial, material and personnel/human resources. The resource allocator distributes resources of all types, including time, funding, equipment, and human resources.
- 4. Negotiator: This role includes representing the organization in negotiations which affect the manager's scope of responsibilities.

Managerial Ethos

- Ethos: It is a Greek word meaning 'Character'. It refers to the set of moral beliefs, attitudes, ideas, habits, etc., that are characteristic of a person or group.

- Managerial Ethos: Managerial ethos is concerned with the character and values of managers as a group of professionals.

1. Autonomy: Enlightened managers believe that most people prefer to feel free and to do things as they like within the constraints imposed by their group. These managers tend to allow enough latitude to individual employees as long as the use of this freedom does not violate basic norms of the organisation.

2. Equity: 'Equity' refers to justice in rewarding performance. Modern managers strongly feel that a person must get a reward proportionate to his input. —Fairness|| has to be maintained.

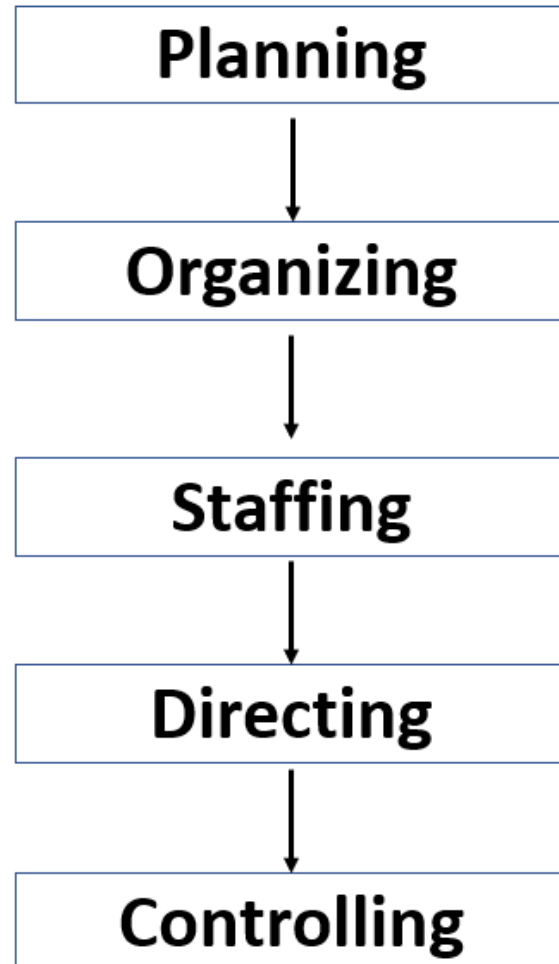

Managerial Ethos

3. Security: This value highlights both economic and emotional security. Getting work done from employees by making them feel insecure is slowly but steadily getting discredited as a management philosophy.

4. Opportunity: Another emerging managerial value is providing subordinates with career advancement opportunities by taking responsibility of his/her professional growth. Even if internal vacancies are not there, enough attention must be paid towards imparting relevant education, skills, and exposure.

Functions of Management

ASSIGNMENT 1 (5 MARKS)

How do you feel about having management responsibilities in today's world (COVID 19), characterized by uncertainty, ambiguity, and sudden changes or threats from the environment? Describe some skills and qualities that are important to managers working in these conditions.

(Max 3000 words)

A decorative network diagram in the top-left corner of the slide. It features a complex web of interconnected nodes and lines. The nodes are represented by small circles, some of which are solid blue, some are hollow with a blue outline, and others are light gray. The lines connecting them are thin and light gray. The overall shape of the network is roughly triangular, pointing towards the top-left corner.

Thank You.....

A decorative network diagram in the bottom-right corner of the slide. It features a complex web of interconnected nodes and lines, similar in style to the one in the top-left. The nodes are represented by small circles, some of which are solid blue, some are hollow with a blue outline, and others are light gray. The lines connecting them are thin and light gray. The overall shape of the network is roughly triangular, pointing towards the bottom-right corner.